Closing Exercises at Earlham College-Conferring the Degree.

Correspondence of the Irdianapolis Journal RICHMOND, June 27.-To-day closed the exercises of commencement week. Hitherto there has been considerable solicitude at these annual gatherings as to the weather, since the audience has been dependent on the foliage of the grove for shelter. This year, for the first time, and with the greatest need, an audience has convened at Earlbam in a hall of its own. New buildings, in value aggregating $70,000, have been erected during the past year, and other improvements are contemplated during the com-

The ordinary exercises of the week were prefaced by a field day on Monday. The spirit of the participants and the interest of the large company assembled indicate that athletics will have much attention during the coming year. Perhaps an additional impetus was given to the exercises by the news received by telephone of Harrison's nomination. Certainly this produced some vigorous vocal exercises not on Farmer Charged with Murder. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

Marion, June 28 .- A sensation of considerable dimensions was caused here to-day by the arrest of James Shaw, one of Grant county's wealthy farmers, residing ten miles west of here, on the charge of murder. The is based on the killing of David Fisher by the accused on the 5th of July, 1886. No inquest was held at the time, and although there were hints of an ug'y character, still it was generally accepted that the killing was purely accidental. The widow brought suit for damages, one incident which was the holding an inquest. Yesterday Coroner Lord returned a verdict of felonious killing and ordered Shaw's arrest. He was taken into enstedy to-day and brought to this city. He was released on bonds of $5,000 to appear for preliminary hearing on the 5th of July. Shaw and his mother own 800 acres of the best land

New Albany's Harrison Relic. Louisville Commercial.

The Tippecanoe Banner, a paper published in New Albany in 1840, is one of the curious relies resurrected since the nomination of Harrison for President. Every number of this paper contained a picture of Gen. William Henry Harrison's famous log cabin and barrel of hard cider, with old Tip standing in front inviting an old soldier in to take dinner. In the vote published of the election returns that year, Floyd county gave Herison 869 votes, and Van Buren 796. Clark county gave Harrison 1,132, and Van Buren 1,278. The total vote in the State of Indiana was: Harrison, 65,302; Van Buren, 51,604. The State seemed to be close then.

Charles Deckler Kills His Wife and Then

Terminates His Own Career. FREEPORT, June 28. - Charles Deckler, a farmer of Buena Vista, sent his children from the house yesterday and then crept up behind his wife and shot her through the brain. Deckler then went into the sitting-room and sent a bullet almost through his heart. Throwing the revolver away he drew a razor and cut his throat so desperately that the head was almost severed from the body. The shots were heard by Deckler's little daughter, who had been sent up to the well. She hastened to the house, and, looking in the bed-room window, saw the dead body of her mother on the floor. She hurried to a neighbor, Arthur Holgate, who at once went to the house and found Deckler on his knees, tearing at his throat and gasping for breath. Holgate hurried away for assistance, and when he returned Deckter was stretched out in a pool of blood, dead. The murderer and suicide leaves a family of nine children, all highly respected. The cause of the tragedy is unknown.

AFFAIRS OF THE RAILWAYS.

Have on Their War Paint.

Railroad officials are puzzled to understand why the Pennsylvania, with all its advantages, is leading off in the cutting of rates. A circular, dated Chicago, and to take effect June 30, has been received by the general freight agents, announcing the rates for the ensuing year. Large outs are made on live-stock traffic. The rates on cattle shipments are reduced from 25 cents to 16; cents per hundred pounds, Chicago to New York; and on hogs from 30 to 25 cents. Similar reduction will be made on live-stock from Indianapolis and other western points. The usual mode of making a reduction has been through the joint committee of the several roads east of the Mississippi river, but the Pennsylvania people, this time, consult with no one, but apply the lance. No action has as yet been taken by competing roads.

The action of the Pennsylvania Company in putting on vestibule trains between St. Louis and New York and between Chicago and New York, over the Panhandle lines, and making noex tra charge for carrying passengers, has aroused the Vanderbilt people, and it will likely lead to all the roads running such trains, making no extra charge for riding on them.

It is absolutely necessary that one or two men should be employed at once by the Unio: Depot Railway Company as train directors. So badly mixed up are the trains at the new sheds there is not a day that there are not dozens of persons miss their trains. THE TICKET TAKES WELL-

The Press of the Country Greatly Pleased Over Harrison and Morton's Nominations.

In Benjamin Harrison the Republicans have a leader whom they can rely upon as growing stronger the more his record is scrutinized, and there will not be the opportunity for mud-throwing, which recent campaigns have been noted for. Harrison will grow in favor day by day until elected .- Providence, R. I., Dispatch. The country is to be congratulated that we have escaped another personal canvass, and this leaves the way measurably open for a return to their old party allegiance of such Republican independents as are convinced that they can do nothing in the Democratic party for the cause of civil-service reform they hold so dear.—Boston Transcript (Mug.)

The Republican position is no longer one of defense. They have lost possession of the works. They must regain control of the government. They must act on the aggressive. They need a captain who can lead a charge with boldness and success. General Harrison has been doing just that sort of thing for years in Indiana, and he is not likely to fail now .- Min-neapolis Journal.

Although there is plenty of chance for senti-ment, music, poetry and romance in the ap-proaching campaign for 'Young Tippecance and Morton too," the real strength of the whole ticket is that General Harrison and Mr. Morton are both men with well and worthily won national reputations, who command the confidence of all classes, whose abilities have stood many tests and been proved equal to every emergency, and whose characters inspire universal respect—New York Mail and Express.

The party accepts General Harrison's leader-ship, and will give him its united and loyal support. There is that in his candidacy which is calculated to heal any past differences, and that in his character which will certainly win the confidence of voters of conscience, intelligence and genuine independence. The Republican party enters this campaign not underestimating its difficulties, but strong, harmonious and courageous, confident in its cause and the justice of its principles, and hoping and expecting success.—Boston Journal.

The nomination of Benjaim Harrison is perfectly satisfactory. * * He will be a splennid candidate, not vaunting himself, not dis-turbed. He will be the leader of the canvass, as he has led the Republicans of Indiana in many a hard fight to their entire satisfaction. That he will carry his own State is apparently beyond dispute, and that he will harmonize all differences elsewhere we believe to be sure. With no spologies, no evasions, no hesitations, General Barrison will step to the front.—Bos-

The Republican party and the people of the Nation no less are to be congratulated on the fortunate outcome of the hotly contested fight at Chicago. It has resulted as all thoughtful and patriotic men believed it would-in the selection of a presidential candidate who is so armored in purity that even Democratic mud can make no stain upon him, and when he shall enter the White House as successor to the present incumbent, the Nation will start anew upon an era of substantial prosperity and growth which we believe will continue indefinitely. -Minneapolis Tribune.

Harrison will be elected for what he is in himself. He will be elected for the sake of the sene of American protection he is to represent. He will be elected because the business and political interests of the country need a Republican triumph. In the ticket, "Harrison and Morton," the winners have been named. The convention has done well. It has done the best possible. Let each Republican who believes this confirm his belief by his vote, and there need be no anxiety as to the outcome of the struggle in November. - Evening Wisconsin.

The Republican convention has nominated for President a man whose honorable, historic name has never been sullied, whose record of public service is creditable if not conspicuous, who has the cordial good-will of the people of his own State, and whose personal qualities, so far as they are yet known, promise no derogation from the dignity of the presidential office should be be chosen to fill it. He has never shown as much statesmanlike ability as Sherman or Allison, nor the conspicuous independence and strength of Gresham. But in view of the posbibilities before the convention, we think the country may well be congratulated upon the result. In a party sense, the nomination is probably the shrewdest that could have been made, -- Springfield Republican (Mugwump.)

There was something more than good conscience, and that wisdom born of it, dictating this nomination—there was rare shrewdness in it. It is an expedient nomination, as it is one which must bring back into the party's ranks all those many thousand sincere Republicans who went out from them in 1884, for no other reason than that they could not, with respect to their sense of duty to themselves, their party or country, elevate their party's candidate to the office of chief magistrate. In a campaign led by Generat Harrison there can be no independent Republicans, no mugwumps, no dissidents, as the cause which created them no longer exists. Republicans and Democrats, protectionists and free-traders, there will be; but no honest; loyal Republican of another name having another a candidate. Every Republican who is so in fact and deed will loyally work and vote in 1888 for the candidate his party bas given him.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

AN HONORABLE POSITION. Brooklyn Eagle (Dem.)

The Eagle is opposed to the party and to the principles which General Harrison believes in. and intends by honorable argument to do what it can to prevent his election, and to make President Cleveland his own successor, but it is a pleasure at the outset to recognize the useful-ness and sincerity of the life of the Republican candidate, and to stake the fight squarely upon the issues which his nomination and that of Mr. Cleveland bring to the front-the issue of revenue reform for all as opposed to protection for the sake of the protected few.

Not only is this a pleasure, but it is a duty to warn Democrats that "they must fight if they would reign." General Harrison is not an immediately strong candidate, but he is likely to become one. There is no reason why Republicans should bolt him. There is no reason to suppose they will not unite on him. There is nothing to be gained by urging that he is unfit or incompetent-for that would be a defeating and a dastardly lie. The mud slinger in this canvass will be the enemy of the side he affects to serve, and General Harrison is likely to be hurt by slingers of Republican mud at Cleveland and Thurman, just as they are likely to be hurt by Democrats who sling mud at their opponents. There is to be no excuse for vilification in 1888. It will be due to the dirtiness of human nature and to the swirl of political passion, and preju-dice, and interest if it occurs. It will not be justified by anything in the careers and characer of the candidates.

Personal Expressions as to the Ticket. collated from New York Tribune.

Ex-Assistant Treasurer Thomas C. Acton: "It a good ticket and one that we can win with. There is no reason why it should not be supported heartily.

Norton Bush, of San Francisco: "The ticket e a good one, and the Pacific coast will support t. The campaign will be one of log cabin and bard older, 'Tippecance and Morton too!"

Aqueduct Commissioner Hamilton Fish, jr.: The nomination of Harrison is splendid, and will be received with great enthusiasm. Every day from now until the election he will increase in strength. I have no doubt of his election." Ex-United States District Attorney A. W. Tenney, of Brooklyn: "My candidate was Blaine, for I have been his personal friend for eighteen years, but, in my opinion the Republican party has done the next best thing by nominating General Harrison.

Ex-Attorney-general Leslie W. Russell emphatically pronounced the ticket a strong one. "I would myself have preferred Depew," he said, "but I have no doubt that Harrison will run well, and he is cortainly competent to discharge all the duties of the presidency. He is a modest man, but he is also an able one."

General Klingman, of North Carolina, an exconfederate brigadier: "The nominations are as strong as could have been made. Judge Greeham and Senator Allison were a little better known to the people at large, but General Harrison with a clean record, and the traditions of his family, is equally strong. I helped elect his grandfather forty years ago.

George S. Boutwell, of Massachusetts, who was a member of Grant's Cabinet, said: "Benjamin Harrison heads the winning ticket. The Republican party faces no battle, for Cleveland has made the fight for them. By his message he has aroused the antagonism of the business interests of the country, and it is my experience that such antagonism has always been fatal. Harrison is as strong a nomination among the available candidates as could have been made.

General Horace Porter: "I am not surprised at Harrison's nomination; it has looked that way some time. I am not personally acquainted with the General, but his record is enough for me. The campaign will now begin in earnest and there will be no skulkers on the Republican side. It will be an aggressive contest from the beginning, and I have no doubt as to the result. Russell Sage: "I think the nomination is a wise one. Considering the complications of the low himself to be chosen, he could be relied upon to give his strength to the ticket, whoever leaded it. Mr. Harrison has a fine ancestry and a good record and he has commanded firm support and confidence from all those who know him well. He will bring out the normal strength of the Republican party, and I believe that the voters who were first drawn by Mr.

Blaine away from their allegiance to Democracy will be kept by the issue now at stake within the ranks of the Republican party."

Gen. James S. Negley, of Pittsburg: The fates have favored the Republican party this time. They have permitted the selection of a man without antagonism. He was nominated by the concession of his rivals. He is pure as a citizen, incorruptible as a politician, and a statesman in sagacity. He is popular with the Grand Army of the Republic, and occupies the middle ground between the agriculturist and the merchant. Pennsylvania will give Harrison 80,000 majority, Ohio 30,000, and he will carry Indiana. I have known General Harrison personally since the war. He is impressive in his demeanor, quiet and modest. He has a strong demeanor, quiet and modest. He has a strong face, is heavy set, has light blonde hair, unchanged by age, is companionable, and has charming surroundings. He lives pleasantly at Indianapolis with his wife and daughter. He will become more and more popular as his latent forces are recognized. John J. Clanev, who was a candidate for Mayor on the United Labor ticket: "I consider the nomination of Harrison and Morton stronger than if Blaine had been on the ticket. The Democrats will endeavor to divert public opinion from the real issue of protection and free trade by trying to go for Harrison on his standing on the Chinese restriction bill. Harrison's record on the bill was in favor of the working classes, but the Democrats will try to show otherwise to divert attention from the real issue. Henry George's going over to Cleveland will realy prove an advantage to the Republican ticket, for he will speak openly on the real issue, and that is the very thing the Democratic party want kept back. George is sure to speak as he thinks, and he is a good reasoner, and you may rest assured his presence on the stump for Cleveland will prove a Jonah for the present occupant of the White House."

Dr. Cowan's brother, James, is a Democratic candidate for the lower house of the State Legislature from Westmoreland county, which was to-day considerably excited over the Doctor's change of party

W. D. Moore, Pittaburg's leading criminal lawyer, and who was for many years a clergy-man, said to-day: "It will he hard for me to vote against Harrison, though I am a Democrat. long to adopt the weak Anglomania ideas; but all through this campaign has displayed strength in diplomacy that has not ceased to astonish adepts in the art. The ballot was moving toward New York when Steve Elkins sat down upon the steps near where Russell Harrison was serenely taking in the situation leaning over the rail. The veteran looked quizzically at the stalwart young man as the solid New York vote fell with a duli thud complimenting the name of General Harrison. The son of that illustrious sire never moved a muscle, he was evidently thinking "He's all right" As Tennessee plumped in her seventeen that swung the vote past the dead point Emmons Blaine rushed over to venng Harrison and heartily wrung his hand with congratulations from Chicago; and Scotland. As the balloting progressed the man with the immense Harrison fan began to wing up enthusiasm, and as it dawned on the vast assemblage that Harrison was the man a roar of satisfaction went up among the iron rafters that ech oed and re-echoed through the Auditorium.

Good Housekeeping. Can we not slightly modify an old and wise adage and find that "woman is known by the closet she keeps?" for a closet indicates to a woman's character. Have we not seen all kinds? Look into this one-we do not need to open the door, 'tis neve shut-not a hook is visible, each one being co ered with a double or triple layer of garment skirts hung by their bindings; waists suspende by their collars-ruinous to the fit-winter at summer clothes promiscuously mingled; soils sprons, all go to make up a part of the confusion. On the floor boots and shoes, cast of pairs; old, new, knocking about any way; t shelves, if there are any, crowded with empt or useless bottles, or pilet high with boxes baskets. Perhaps our own closets may conta one or more of these evils. How shall we re edy them! In the first place, keep the closet door sh during the day, for an open door is one this that gives an air of untidiness to the who room. On the other hand, always leave th door open at night. That is the proper time air the closet; 'tis then the chamber is the coo est, and the daily-or rather nightly-change air, prevents any mustiness clinging to the ga ments hung there. Do not hang your wint and summer garments in the same close In the fall put away the sum mer dresses—the cotton ones washe and rough dried—folded in an empty trunk of box or hung in a disused closet kept for the pur pose. In the spring, do the same with the winter garments. One will find it refreshin after a putting-away of this kind, to be able catch sight of a book or two that has nothing

Hang up waists and skirts by loops proper uttached. 'Tis not always as convenient, but repays in the end. Keep soiled clothes fro

the closet, unless in a laundry bag. It is a great deal more convenient to take pair of shoes polished and clean from a sho bag of linen or ticking, hung on the inside of the door, than it is to strain one's back stooping over and picking among half a dozen dus pairs-to find the mates-on the floor. If or has a shoe-bag she will intuitively keep castshoes out of it. Some of these bags are made to cover nearly the whole door; then the upper pockets, made any size convenient, are used for soiled collars, cuffs and handkerchiefs; and the score of little necessaries. Keep only the botprevents one of the disagreeable features of house-cleaning, overhauling the closets.

In a house recently built, the linen closet had three or four immense drawers, each large enough to hold two pairs of blankets or the same number of quilts, placed on rollers; so there is no back-breaking strain in opening the heaviest My mother told me she learned when she was was saved the borror of the annual clearing out of a "clutter place." Some of the fashionable women of New York have found a new way to solve the difficulties surrounding the oft-recurring dress-makers' bill. The way they do it is by paying their dressmakers fixed sums by the month or year, just as the Chinese do their physicians. Mrs. John Sherwood is said to have been the leader in the new method, and she pays her dress-maker $50 per month, for which sum she has made all the

A laundryman in the vicinity of Paris has discovered a very ingenious method of cleaning linen without soap.
